Dear Esteemed Partners and Colleagues,

With the utmost respect and sincere appreciation, I wish to extend my highest gratitude for the extraordinary dedication, intellectual rigor, and collective spirit that you have demonstrated in realizing the success of International Management Week (IMW) 2024. My heartfelt thanks go to the Rector of Universitas Sarjanawiyata Tamansiswa (UST) for entrusting us with the stewardship of this prestigious platform, as well as to the entire organizing committee, whose meticulous planning, tireless enthusiasm, and solid collaboration have transformed a shared vision into a remarkable reality.

International Management Week is far more than an annual event; it is a dynamic interdisciplinary forum where academic excellence meets visionary leadership, where knowledge exchange transcends disciplinary and national boundaries, and where enduring partnerships are forged to address increasingly complex and interconnected global challenges. This forum unites scholars, industry leaders, policymakers, and change agents around a common mission: to advance knowledge, ignite transformative innovation, and chart collaborative pathways toward a more equitable and sustainable future for our world.

Looking ahead to International Management Week 2025, we humbly present the new theme: "Shaping a Sustainable Future: Innovation, Community Engagement, and Global Solutions." This theme is not merely a declaration, but a call to action — inviting us to mobilize creativity, leverage technological and social innovation, and strengthen synergies among academia, industry, and communities worldwide. We envision IMW 2025 as a catalyst for groundbreaking projects, inclusive growth models, and sustainable strategies that deliver tangible benefits for humanity and our planet.

PRBRACE

The success of this ambitious vision depends fundamentally on the active involvement and unwavering commitment of every stakeholder. Your expertise, thought leadership, and dedication will be pivotal to ensuring that IMW 2025 transcends a conventional academic gathering, becoming a historic milestone of collective empowerment and global progress.

This is a defining moment to move forward with resolve and clear purpose. Together, let us not only shape discourse but also forge a future that is sustainable, inclusive, and resilient. Through close collaboration, I am confident that IMW 2025 will be remembered not merely as an event, but as a turning point in the global endeavor toward a better, more just world.

Warmest regards, Head of Management Study Program

Scenic Wonders of Jogja

Nestled in the heart of Java, Yogyakarta affectionately known as "Jogja"—is more than just a city; it is a living museum where tradition and modernity dance in harmony. This special region, uniquely governed by a Sultan, exudes a timeless charm rooted in Javanese royalty, spirituality, and culture. The majestic Keraton Yogyakarta, the Sultan's Palace, is not merely a royal residence but the heartbeat of the city, where the sounds of traditional gamelan, the grace of classical dance, and the artistry customs. Jogja is also home to two UNESCO World Heritage Sites that embody the spiritual and architectural genius of ancient Indonesia. Borobudur, the world's largest Buddhist temple, rises with intricate stone reliefs and massive stupas that echo centuries of devotion, while not far away, the Prambanan temple complex stands as a soaring testament to Hindu epics and artistry.

Yogyakarta stuns visitors with its soaring temple spires and intricate carvings from Hindu epics, yet its essence lies as much in moments as in monuments. The vibrant pulse of Malioboro Street—where batik stalls, street food vendors, and horse-drawn carriages meet—blends tradition with modern life, while adventures range from hiking the fiery slopes of Mount Merapi to descending into the light-filled depths of Jomblang Cave. From the ruins of Taman Sari, once a royal water castle, to the timeless rhythms of rural villages, every corner reveals stories carved in stone, painted in batik, and sung through generations, making Yogyakarta not merely a destination but a soulful journey into the heart of Indonesia.
